BRITAIN PREPARES FOR "CRUCIAL WEEK"

SENATE GROUP APPROVES HUGE DEFENSE FUND

Provides Over Five Billions for Two-Ocean Navy, Big Army.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19—The senate appropriations committee approved today a $5,008,169,277 appropriations bill providing funds for the beginning of construction on a "two-ocean" navy and for equipping an army of 1,200,000 men.

The committee acted while on the senate floor there began another week of sharp debate on the Burke-Wadsworth conscription bill. Differences between senate and house drafts of legislation authorizing mobilization of the national guard delayed final congressional action on that measure.

The appropriations committee increased by $45,017,320 the direct appropriations and contract authority previously approved by the house in the $5,008,000,000 supplemental defense measure.

In the conscription debate, Senator Capper (R-Kans), declared he was "opposed to military conscription in peace time" because he did not "believe the danger of war is so imminent as to make it necessary."

Would Back Maloney

He said he would support a substitute by Senator Maloney (D-Conn) which would defer compulsory training until an effort had first been made to obtain men by voluntary enlistment.

Resort to voluntary enlistments ahead of compulsory military training, Senator Hill (D-Ala) and his colleagues, would "place a premium on slackerism and a penalty on patriotism."

A joint senate-house committee will try to iron out conflicting views on the national guard bill.

Chairman Sheppard (D-Tex) of the senate military committee told reporters that a house change in the wording of the resolution would leave the President without authority to call into service the officers reserve corps of about 125,000 men, the enlisted reserves numbering about 30,000 and about 15,000 men in the regular army reserve. The senate refused to accept this change and others made in the house, thus sending the legislation to conference.

The house also had amended the measure to eliminate reference to the national labor relations board in a section making it an unfair labor practice for an employer to refuse to reinstate in his job a guardsman called for active duty and released after training.

Still Confident

Despite Wendell L. Willkie's indorsement of "some form of selective service," anti-conscription forces were confident today that the senate would vote to defer a draft until the new year, instead of approving the Burke-Wadsworth bill proposal for immediate military training.

The confidence of the anti-conscription senators ran so high that pressure was being brought to bear on Senator Maloney (D-Conn) to make further modifications in his measure for postponement of conscription until 1941.

May Vote This Week

The Maloney proposal, which is expected to reach a vote this week, now provides for immediate registration of all men between 21 and 31. In this respect, unlike the Burke-Wadsworth bill, The measure, however, stipulates that the registered men shall not be called for service before Jan. 1, 1941, and then only if the army fails to obtain sufficient manpower by voluntary enlistments.

The pronouncements on selective service and the necessity for accelerated preparedness which Willkie made Saturday in accepting the Republican presidential

U. S.-CANADIAN WAR BOARD SET

Two Nations Bound Closely by New Defense Tie; To Meet Soon.

By The Associated Press

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Aug. 19—The destinies of Canada and the United States, in a world wincing from the blows of war, were interlocked more closely today than ever before in their history by an agreement for permanent coordination of their defenses.

A joint board of defense will meet soon, in accordance with an understanding reached by President Roosevelt and Prime Minister W. L. MacKenzie King of Canada, for "immediate studies relating to sea, land and air problems, including personnel and material."

The decision to set up a permanent board, made up primarily of four or five military experts from each country, was announced yesterday in a joint statement at Ogdensburg, N. Y.

Meet On Border

There, on the international border, the President and the prime minister had met to discuss "mutual problems of defense" and the safety of their nations. There they made an agreement unique in the annals of American foreign policy.

In effect, it made neutral United States, for purposes of North American defense, an ally of a nation actively at war with Germany and Italy.

If the agreement envisions American involvement should the totalitarian powers attempt to bring their conflict to the dominion, it was nothing more than military men had expected. They have long contended that for the United States to be safe, it must see to it that Canada also is safe.

Nor did the agreement present administration views in an entirely new light.

Two years ago, at the dedication of an international bridge at Kingston, Ont., President Roosevelt declared that the United States would not stand idly by if Canada were threatened by forces from overseas and at Ogdensburg

INDIANA MAN NAMED WALLACE SUCCESSOR

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19 — Claude R. Wickard, Indiana farmer, was nominated by President Roosevelt today to succeed Henry A. Wallace, the Democratic vice-presidential nominee, as secretary of agriculture.

Since last winter, Wickard has been undersecretary of agriculture.

Wallace's resignation, effective Sept. 5, was announced in exchange of letters released today at Hyde Park, N. Y.

Stephen Early, presidential secretary, said Wickard was promoted because of President Roosevelt's desire to have the agriculture department directed by some one from within its own organization.

Wickard is the operator of a large farm in Indiana which specializes in corn and hogs.

He came to the department several years ago as a lesser official in the agriculture adjustment administration. He was promoted to the directorship of the AAA's central division, which includes most of the corn-belt states.

Wickard is 47 years old and a graduate of Purdue university.

Marion Resident Is Victim Of Automobile and Bicycle Crash

John Edward Maze Dies in Mishap at Fountain Street and Kenton Avenue.

John Edward Maze, 38, of Fountain street was killed almost instantly when his bicycle collided with an automobile at Fountain street and Kenton avenue about 8 p. m. Saturday.

The accident occurred as Mr. Maze, making a left turn from Fountain street onto Kenton avenue, apparently failed to see an automobile driven by John Schott, 59, of west of Marion, which was eastbound on Kenton avenue, state patrolmen who investigated were told.

Thrown to Pavement

The bicycle struck the left front door and the left front fender of the car, hurling Mr. Maze to the pavement a few feet away. Mr. Schott and passersby said Mr. Maze's head appeared to strike on the pavement as he fell. They said he was dead when they reached him. Coroner M. F. Axthelm said death was due to a skull fracture and a broken neck.

Mr. Schott told state patrolmen he saw Mr. Maze and the bicycle a moment before the crash and attempted to avoid the mishap by swerving off the highway. He told officers he pulled his car onto the berm on the right side of the road and knocked over a metal road marker but was unable to get out of the way of the bicycle.

The intersection is a short distance west of the corporation limits.

Funeral Tuesday

Mr. Maze came to Marion 20 years ago from Ironton, where he was born on Oct. 7, 1903, to John J. Maze, a native of Scioto county, and Belle Workman Maze, a native of Lawrence county, Kentucky.

Surviving are the father and step-mother, who live on Fountain street, five sisters, Mrs. Maggie Tillman and Mrs. May Hallback, at home, Mrs. Reva Bridenstine of Kenton, Mrs. Ruby Risch of Fies avenue and Mrs. Ida Hawkins of Ironton, and three brothers, Elmer and George at home and Luther of Lima.

The body is at the W. C. Boyd funeral home where the funeral will be conducted Tuesday at 2 p. m. Burial will be made in Forest Glen Memorial park.

Killed Near Spot Where Brother Died

The accident which claimed the life of John Edward Maze occurred only a few feet from the spot where a brother, Clarence Leonard Maze, 29, met almost instant death when he was struck by an automobile on the night of Dec. 28, 1935.

Clarence Maze had come home to spend the Christmas holidays with his family after service with the U. S. army in Honolulu. He was walking along the highway after a visit with a sister, Mrs. Ruby Risch of Fies avenue, when he was struck by an automobile. The driver of the car was exonerated. Mr. Maze held a U. S. army's pilot's license and planned to re-enlist in the service shortly after the holidays.

Man Burned in Truck Fire

Robert Gilbert, 24, of 354 West Columbia street suffered burns on the right arm while attempting to extinguish a fire in a truck at the Buckeye Brewing Co. distributing plant at 185 North Main street Saturday night.

Company officials estimated the damage to the truck at nearly $1,000. The cause had not been determined today.

The truck broke out in flames about 8 Saturday night, a few moments after Gilbert had driven it into the plant. He told firemen that he had just gotten out of the truck when the interior of the cab burst into flames. He and other employes of the company attempted to put out the fire but the flames quickly got out of control. Firemen from the Central station were called and extinguished the fire in time to keep the damage confined principally to the driver's compartment, Chief McFarland reported.

Firemen gave Gilbert first aid treatment for his burns and he later was treated at his home by a physician.

Bob Owens Wins Golf Championship At Country Club

Bob Owens was crowned Marion Country club champion yesterday as he defeated Herb Petrich, last year's winner, 10-8 in the 36-hole finals. The new champ was never in trouble and was three under par at the end of the 28 holes played.

Owens enjoyed a 2 up lead at the end of the first nine holes of the morning round as he fired a one-under-par 36 to Petrich's 39. He stretched the margin to 5 up at the end of the 18 as he shot regulation figures, 37, to give him a 73 total. Petrich slipped to a 42 on the incoming nine for an 18-hole score of 81.

Owens Strengthens Lead

They halved the first hole of the afternoon round with birdie fours. Owens holed out for a par four on the second while his opponent was taking a bogey five. This gave the new champion a 6 up advantage and he followed it up by taking the next two holes with a par on the third and a birdie on the fourth as Petrich shot a bogey and a par.

The latter won the next hole, a 448-yard par-five hole, with a birdie four as Owens went down in par figures. Owens boosted his lead to eight up by taking the par-three sixth hole with a three as Petrich was using up four strokes. A par four on the seventh gave that hole to Petrich but it was all in vain as Owens won it back on the next with a par four and went on to take the ninth with a par four.

GERMAN MOVES HINT INVASION ATTEMPT NEAR

Hitler Warns Parachutists Deserve Fair Treatment, Implying Assault at Hand.

By The Associated Press

BERLIN, Aug. 19—Nazi air scouts were reported ranging the British coasts today as Germany multiplied signs that she was getting ready to try a decisive blow against Britain.

Two British planes were shot down near Ramsgate, at the mouth of the Thames estuary, and a third was seen falling in flames to the sea, DNB, official German news agency reported.

But the air fighting apparently was minor as the German fliers carried out what was described as "armed reconnaissance," to check on the effect of their air siege and, presumably, search for new targets.

German reconnoitering planes, accompanied by fighters, were able to take photographs at low altitude over southern England with little hindrance, DNB declared.

British Spitfires tried to form a barrier to the German planes, it said, but only in a few instances were able to engage them in battle.

Through Swiss diplomatic channels, Adolf Hitler warned the British to treat his parachute troops according to the international laws applying to other troops or he would visit reprisals upon British aviators held prisoner.

Aside from this implication that Germany may be about to attempt the landing of men to hold vital land objectives in Britain, authorized spokesmen declared:

"Just give us three days of good weather," intimating that the German military is convinced the air war rapidly is achieving its purpose of "softening up" the British and that the crucial week may be at hand.

Wait For Signal

German troops were reported at French channel ports, impatiently waiting for the air force to do its work.

Thousands of German aviators were said to be held in reserve in scores of airports in France, Belgium and Holland to launch a supreme air wave at the British.

Describing the blows dealt by the air force, which Germans believed is rapidly paving the way for a Nazi peace over London by September, the German high command said 124 British planes were shot down in battles Sunday.

Declaring many airports had been attacked in Britain's "hot" southeast corner, in an apparent effort to destroy the British air force, the high command said 23 other British planes were destroyed on the ground before they could rise to fight.

Admit 36 Downed

Germany acknowledged loss of 36 of her own planes.

Airports near London, to the south and east of there, and near Liverpool had been bombed, as well as armament works in Norwich and Essex, and ports at Havenmouth, at Bournemouth and Weymouth on the south and at Milfordhaven in Wales. Fuel stores were attacked last night east of London, the high command said.

The official report of 147 British planes destroyed was a marked reduction from the 182 earlier reported by the German radio and other sources.

Thirty-three of Britain's defense balloons were declared shot down, and a 4,000-ton merchant vessel reported sunk.

NEW YORK, Aug. 19—Walter P. Chrysler, 65, a one-time locomotive wiper who became one of America's great automotive industrialists, died yesterday at his suburban Long Island home in Great Neck of cerebral hemorrhage. He had been unconscious 24 hours.

A funeral service will be held Wednesday at 10 a. m. (Marion time) in St. Bartholomew's Episcopal church here. Burial will be in Sleepy Hollow cemetery, Tarrytown, N. Y.

Entry List Hits High Mark For 90th Annual County Fair

Final Preparations Under Way for Opening Tuesday; Judging To Start Wednesday.

Marion county fairgrounds bustled with activity today as fair officials, exhibitors and concession operators made final preparations for the opening Tuesday of the four-day 90th annual agricultural show.

Officials reported there were overflow entries in every department when the entry deadline was reached Saturday night. They predicted the 1940 fair would be one of the most successful in recent years, barring adverse weather.

More than ever before the junior fair will dominate this year's display. Having grown from a small department a decade ago to one of the busiest and best-attended features of the fair, the junior department this year has been assigned three-fourths of the art hall, which is one of the largest buildings on the grounds and the one closest to the main entrance.

This year the building has been improved by construction of 42 permanent display booths in the art hall. These will be given over to the four departments within the junior fair—4-H clubs, vocational agriculture classes, home economics classes and juvenile granges. F. W. Baldinger, junior fair superintendent, is working with the junior fair board to make its display this year one of the biggest in fair history. It is expected the art hall will house all but the livestock projects of junior fair members. These will be handled in a nearby barn.

Judging Schedule

Junior fair officials today announced judging of livestock, 4-H nutrition projects and home economics displays will be started Wednesday morning, a day earlier than usual. Howard Davison of the extension animal husbandry department at Ohio State university will judge the livestock and Miss Margaret Lamb of Newark, a home economics instructor, will judge the girls' exhibits. Other junior fair features will include a style show by the home economics and 4-H club girls at 1 p. m. Thursday and 4-H club demonstrations at 10 a. m. Thursday.

A crowd estimated at more than 500 visited the fairgrounds yesterday to watch concession operators start erecting mechanical rides and other equipment. Some exhibitors got an early start preparing for their displays, and fair board members and employes helped get the grounds and buildings ready for displays.

Annual Picnic Held

One of yesterday's features was the annual picnic for fair board members and their families, held in the art hall. Approximately 70 persons attended. Among them were two guests, Ray Howard, operator of the mechanical rides concession, and Jack Richards, operator of the tent concession. Both men are from Columbus.

Admission to the grounds will be free until Tuesday noon. Program features will get under way Wednesday when the harness racing and night fair programs will be given.

Exhibitors kept fair officials busy Saturday afternoon and night. Thirty-eight entries were received

Willkie Planning Kansas Talk To Open Campaign

By The Associated Press

RUSHVILLE, Ind., Aug. 19 — Wendell L. Willkie was completing arrangements today to open a nationwide speaking campaign at Coffeyville, Kansas, in mid-September—unless, he said, "President Roosevelt would like to meet me beforehand" in joint debates.

The Republican presidential nominee challenged the Chief Executive Saturday to argue foreign and domestic issues "face to face," but he told reporters yesterday he had "not heard a word from Washington" in reply.

"I am waiting patiently," Willkie said as he sat in the cream-colored home of his mother-in-law, Mrs. Cora Wilk. "I will be glad to accommodate myself to any dates the President wants to fix."

The candidate determined finally on the Coffeyville engage-

SOMALILAND YIELDED BY BRITISH TROOPS

By The Associated Press

The British war office acknowledged tonight that empire defense forces have withdrawn from the burning African desert protectorate of British Somaliland, while Fascists in Rome jubilantly claimed the British were driven out in a "little Dunkerque"—rivalling the Allied retreat from Flanders.

Rome dispatches said 7,000 British troops at Berbera, chief port and capital of British Somaliland, were "trapped" and taking to their boats under a hail of bombs and machine-gun bullets from Italian war planes.

British Indian and Rhodesian mountain soldiers were reported fighting a fierce rear-guard action to protect the withdrawal.

The British were described as batting "magnificently" and inflicting heavy losses.

First Big Victory

The retreat marked the first major victory scored by Italian arms over the British since the war began.

ENTIRE ISLAND KNIT INTO ONE DEFENSE AREA

Kingdom Coordinated To Repulse German Push Likely To Come Soon.

By The Associated Press

All Britain's island kingdom was prescribed as a single, coordinated defense area to combat "enemy landings by air or sea" today as authorized Nazis in Berlin indicated that the crucial week was at hand in the offensive against England.

Spokesmen in the German capital said the Nazi air force—with three days more of good weather—would strike decisive blows in an intensified assault on the blockaded kingdom.

Up to late afternoon, however, there was no sign of the heralded new aerial storm. Nevertheless, British manned anti-aircraft defenses constantly.

A German bomber was reported shot down in southwest England, and lone German raider bombed a house in a southeast coast town, trapping two persons in the wreckage.

Of mass-scale attacks, such as marked the preceding week of aerial siege, there were none.

Berlin dispatches said Nazi air scouts and were roving over England, checking the results of their raids and searching for new targets.

The British air ministry announced that RAF fighters "bagged" 813 German planes in the past seven days of combat.

Mass in France

Nazi troops massed at French channel ports were described as waiting impatiently for the air force to prepare the way for a cross-channel land invasion, confident of swift victory with the end of the war by September.

The British ministry of home security, in a communique announcing the establishment of a nationwide defense zone, said that the area embraced England, Scotland and Wales and that the other "enables any measures to be introduced without delay which might become urgently necessary" in case of an invasion.

Simultaneously, the German government notified Britain through the Swiss foreign office that Nazi parachute troops must be treated according to international law—not shot as spies when taken prisoner—or direct reprisals would be taken against English air force captives.

Reported Clearly Marked

Despite reports that Nazi parachutists have worn all manner of disguises in landing in enemy territory, including feminine garb and pristly robes, the German government insisted that the 'chutist uniforms are clearly marked with military insignia.

On this side of the Atlantic, William C. Bullitt, United States ambassador to Nazi-vanquished France, sounded a warning to Americans with a nationwide broadcast in which he bluntly predicted a German attack on the United States if Great Britain is defeated.

Bullitt's speech, urging the dispatch of aid to the British fleet, carried the approval of the U. S. state department.

(General Pershing, commander of the American Expeditionary Force in the last war, advocated in Washington Aug. 4 that "at least 50" destroyers left over from the World war be made available to the British.)

Bullitt, the first high ranking member of the administration to advocate naval aid, declared that "the destruction of the British navy would be the turning of our Atlantic Maginot line."

"Without the British navy," he asserted, "the Atlantic would give us no more protection than the Maginot line gave France after the German troops had marched through Belgium."

Warning against unpreparedness, the envoy said:

"The men and women who tell you that the dictators will not attack the western hemisphere may be honest, wishful thinkers or they may be agents of the dictators; but in either case, by lulling you into a false security and retarding your preparedness for defense, they are keeping the way clear for an assault on America by the dictators. They are enemies, consciously or unconsciously, of our country and our liberties."

During the week-end, the British air force lashed at German-

WHEAT GAINS BACK PORTION OF LOSSES

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO Aug 19—After falling as much as 1⅜ cents to within about a cent of the seasonal lows established last Friday wheat prices today rallied recovering part of the loss
Moderate hedging in connection with the largest receipts of the season at spring wheat terminals liquidation of September contracts and trade nervousness because of the European war accounted for the weakness. Mill buying helped the rally

Loy-Powell Film At Palace Called Good Comedy

"I Love You Again" is one of the funniest pictures of this summer The Palace feature through Tuesday stars Myrna Loy and William Powell in a comedy that's a departure from their Thin Man stories A rap on the head restores Powell from a nine-year period of amnesia during which he has become the stuffed shirt community leader in a little Pennsylvania town has acquired a wife who is on the verge of divorcing him has become head of a pottery business and has developed into quite an amateur taxidermist That he was a slick confidence man before amnesia struck him adds to the laugh-creating situations His decision to return to his old trade under the guise of the town's fair-haired civic leader finds him in partnership with Frank McHugh who poses as a doctor and Edmund Lowe—getting a trifle heavy—as a slick promotor of oil booms where there isn't any oil Miss Loy departs from a series of perfect wife roles She's baffled by this suave man to whom she's married a chap given to buying her expensive lingerie instead of his former $1 98 nightgowns champagne tailored clothes and a new mustache She likes the change though and when it seems for a moment that he may return to his amnesia state she's all for bopping him with a vase Lots of laughs and they pile up To appreciate the story it will be well to get to the theater on time
The bill includes a Pete Smith novelty a short on Sam Snead the golfer and his technique and a newsreel Recommended as ideal light entertainment—H H

The Stars Say—

For Tuesday, Aug 20

ACCORDING to the lunar and mutual configuration there should be a period of opportunity for much productive work in new lines in which fresh ways of doing things or radical departures from old methods and ideas may take a sudden leap toward profitable and secure objectives It is a time for tackling progressive projects with audacity and precision even by spectacular promotional schemes However there is need of definite discretion and vigilance as there are signs of pitfalls and snares Sign papers with care In the personal or affectional life there are intriguing experiences

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is are to have a year of opportunity to put into execution some very progressive if not revolutionary ideas Innovations breaking away from effete and outworn systems or methods are in line to attract public attention with sufficient promotional publicity But be alert to fraud trickery and subtle undermining being particularly careful with papers In the private life there are also possibilities of intrigue or secret adventures probably romantic Be wise

A child born on this day should be inventive progressive creative beyond the usual grooves It may have a happy talent for writing romantic literature It needs guidance as to protection against fraud or imposition

MEMORY OF THE MOON

by Jeanne Bowman

YESTERDAY: Taylor, the manager of El Cabrillo Rancho, has offered $50,000 for the ranch. Constance Cabrillo's family is eager to sell but she knows the money will soon vanish. She decides to go to California and investigate.

Chapter Three
Fuller's Junction

CONSTANCE Cabrillo stopped twice enroute to the airport, once to telephone and learn that the plane was leaving at seven and to make a reservation on it, the second time at her office where she spent a precious half-hour closeted with the head of the realty firm.

That man wiped his brow as she whisked away.

"I hope she never tries to sell me the Empire State building," he wheezed to his secretary. "I'd buy it."

"Shall I lie to the family for you?" asked the secretary sympathetically.

"If you will," he replied, wearily, and listened to the young woman inform the Cabrillos that he had sent Miss Constance on an important mission; that he did not give out information on prospective purchases of out-of-town territory, consequently he could not tell them where she was; that she kept an overnight bag at the office, packed for such trips.

Constance garaged her car, signaled a cab and drove to the airport, smiling a little at the thought of a Cabrillo taking a trans-continental trip with no more luggage than she carried.

She thought of the Cabrillos for the next sixteen hours while the big ship roared through the sky: under stars, under sunshine, across plains misty with the first fall rains, over mountains blazing white with their new mantles of snow.

As the ship circled in over San Francisco Bay, she thought of John with a guilty start, and wondered how long he had waited for her.

She felt as lost and alone as the plane looked in that sea of fog, and later, breakfasting at the airport, wondered if she had done wrong; if it hadn't been the Cabrillo in her that had caused her to throw her hard-earned commission away on this trip when she might have paid bills with it.

By noon, boarding a local train which would steam its way to the town nearest the ranch, she was trying to comfort herself with the thought that her father wouldn't have left that provision in the will if he hadn't expected her to act as she was acting.

And then she relaxed. Outside the window were tawny hills growing purple in the distance; pale golden valleys dotted with grazing herds; fruit orchards, crooked limbs holding tattered yellow leaves.

Then came the redwoods. The train plunged into a dusky cavern of them, seemed to nose a stream half-hidden in a thicket of young bay trees, and finding the bank, proceeded along it at an insolent pace.

Hours passed and Constance dozed to sit up, alert, at the brakeman's call of "Fuller's Junction!"

"Taylor's Ranch"

The train was in a clearing now, the hills falling away to give the river clearance to the sea, and when it stopped, Constance looked out from the vestibule to find fog rolling in, in vast, wet billows which settled down, crushing the few buildings of the junction into nonenity.

She felt her spirit crushed with the foreboding outlook, and when the train pulled out she felt it was her last link with civilization.

"Expectin' to be met?"

Constance wheeled to find a few loafers eyeing her with curiosity, a station master standing just behind her awaiting an answer to his question.

"No," she admitted, "but I had hoped to hire a cab which would take me to El Cabrillo Rancho."

"El Cabrillo," mused the man. "Oh, you mean Taylor's ranch."

Constance immediately hated Taylor. So the countryside already thought of her home as belonging to the manager, did they?

"Well, now," the station master continued. "Can't say as there's a cab within a hundred miles, but ... Sam!" he called, and one of the loafers separated himself from a milk can. "Is Min rentin' out Tim's car these days?"

"Shore is," drawled Sam. "Two bits an hour, lest you like a flat rate, and promise of pay for repairs. Min ain't aimin' to pay no more on that bus. It like to took all Tim's insurance to fix it so it'd run agin, after Tim killed himself in it."

Constance swallowed, but it was Min's Tim's car or the next train back, and where would she wait for the train. There wasn't a hotel in sight. She could see the entire town from where she stood, and only a barber shop and post office, a general store and undertaking parlor and a garage were visible.

Sam offered to take her to Min and grew loquacious on the way. "Bet you're a-goin' out to see Peter," he offered. "He shore has a way with girls. Been back from college goin' on six years, but some of them there coeds ain't given up yet."

"Tell me about the car," insisted Constance, as there was no Peter in her plans. "Will it run?"

"Run's like Min's tongue," Sam assured her. "Folks is sayin' her jongue run both the car and Tim straight off the cliff. 'Course the coroner he said Tim was carryin' a pretty big load under his vest, but then Tim's Min would a drive a piebald mule to drink."

Curtain Of Fog

Min's tongue drove Constance to the highway with the running fire of impertinent questions. Having obtained a $50 deposit, she sought to obtain the reason for a "classy young lady, goin' out to Taylor's ranch, iffen she wasn't after a man."

"Well," she concluded, above the roar of the motor, "good luck. You'll need it. Prettier girls 'n you have tried to rope him."

Constance had driven five miles before the buzz of Min's voice faded from her memory. For such a sparsely settled country the road was in good condition. It wound through the coast hills, skirting a stream, then abruptly shot over a hill to come down in a world of blank fog.

Here Constance found the road joined a misty coast highway, and thought, sympathetically, that here was where Min's Tim had found release from that eternal chatter.

She looked down through the gray vapor as she drove, to see a jagged shore line far below, snag-toothed rocks sticking their ugly fangs upwards, swirling foam of an angry set washing their base.

She shivered and drew back.

Fog swept across the highway in curtains, lifted for a few yards, then settled again.

How was she going to see the signs they had told her to watch for?

El Cabrillo Rancho ran from the low-tide line to the crest of the second inland range. Permission was given the State highway to traverse the coast line, but it was posted at intervals and passed through a succession of fenced areas and over cattle guards.

The car rattled over four bridges of what appeared to be dove-tailed slats set parallel with the road, then, at a sudden lifting of the fog, she uttered a cry of triumph.

A white sign faced her with the familiar words:

EL CABRILLO RANCHO
Private Property
Permission to pass over this road revokable at any time,
P. T. Taylor,
Manager.

How Much Should A Funeral Cost . . . ?

There is no question upon which the public is so poorly informed as the cost of a funeral. This has led to rumors and misinformation, often far from the facts.

To furnish reliable information upon this subject we print, occasionally, a record of our charges for funerals. Since this is a direct summary of the judgment and desires of the families in this area, it is the most dependable information that could be furnished.

For Public Information We Print This Record of Our Charges

THIS RECORD OF OUR CHARGES

81 Funerals cost $100 or less	The prices shown are for adult funerals only and cover our entire charges. The only further cost was the amount paid to the cemetery. Many of these funerals were held in our funeral home for which there is no extra charge.
89 Funerals from $101 to $200
114 Funerals from $201 to $300
122 Funerals from $301 to $400
87 Funerals from $401 to $500
40 Funerals from $501 to $700
15 Funerals more than $700

This organization invites advance arrangements. Selecting a funeral is a straightforward business transaction that is better handled when minds are normal than during the stress of grief.

Americans Due To Abandon "Screwy" Health Fad Ideas, Expert Predicts

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Aug. 19 — Health [illegible] Americans—and they [illegible]—are about to abandon [illegible] "screwy" health fad ideas, says Prof. Arthur H. Steinhaus of [illegible] Williams college.

They are going to drop beliefs that a strong sun tan is good for one, that shrimps and strawberries should never be eaten together, that irregular eating is a common cause of stomach trouble and man other unsupported by scientific investigation, Prof. Steinhaus asserted in an interview today.

Prof. Steinhaus is chairman of the health instruction section of the American Association for Health, Physical Education and Recreation and is head of George Williams' department of physiology.

"Having passed through two stages of health consciousness, first the period of slogans such as 'early to bed and early to rise' and the second of 'health facts', we are about to enter one of 'health reasons,'" he said. "The new period is based on the conviction of health authorities that people can distinguish a fact from a falsehood only if they know the reasons behind each statement."

With the advancement of scientific investigation, he said, more and more persons are beginning to ask the "whys" of health fads, and health authorities will have to teach health reasons, rather than rules and "facts."

Prof. Steinhaus described the open-window-oxygen-fiend, who covers himself up to his nose with a huge pile of blankets, as definitely "crazy."

"It's not so much the oxygen, but the room temperature that's important," he said. "What this fellow actually does is over-heat his body with blankets and prevent a good circulation of air. Besides that the weight of the blankets makes him uncomfortable. I'm talking about the extremist, who thinks he's doing something for his lungs and nose. The outdoor air is no better than that indoors, except that it 's more likely to be cool. Sleeping in excessively cold air may bring on sinus difficulties.

"Some other 'screwy' ideas still entertained by some health enthusiasts are these:

"Bow legs result when babies are permitted to walk too early in life. (It's the diet that's responsible)

"An outdoor walk is invigorating because there is more oxygen in the open air.

"The human body renews all of its parts once every seven years.

"Acid foods should never be taken with milk.

"Poor posture is one of the causes of tuberculosis.

"Regular physical exercise will increase one's resistance to most disease germs. (This has been proved false by scientific tests. Healthful living, but not exercise of itself helps resist germs).

"The chewing of hard foods will strengthen and harden the enamel of the teeth. (It helps the gums, but not the enamel).

"An athlete should refrain from eating sweets and ice cream while he is in training. (On the contrary sweets form the most rapid source of energy).

YOUR HEALTH

By DR. LOGAN C. CLENDENING

Hay Fever

IF THE German army should decide to invade the United States through Mexico and enter the fertile valley of the Mississippi and its tributaries during the second week in August we wouldn't have to fire a gun.

I figure that those little blue eyed German boys who have never lived in a real hay fever country would be naturals for our middle western ragweed. You can't pull a trigger while you're sneezing, you can't read a map while you're crying, and you can't guide a tank while you're blowing your nose. And the aeroplanists, if they once got their machines above the pollen cloud, would just fly back to the fatherland and report that our country was permanently under a pall of poison gas of unexampled ferocity.

Atomizer Days

Certainly in that otherwise favored region, the great garden of the world, from August 15 to September 15 from the borders of Ohio to the borders of Colorado, from the dells of Wisconsin to the plains of Texas, twenty-five per cent of the inhabitants automatically cease all occupation and all effort except squeezing the bulb of an atomizer.

The poet pauses in his pean, the kindly eyes of the banker are suffused with tears, the captain of industry greets his machine shop only with a sniff. They turn from lyres and ledgers and lathes to reach for their pocket handkerchiefs. Some favored ones flee their once happy homes like wild animals bursting from the borders of a flaming forest and seek the woods of Canada, the mountains, the desert or the open sea and pause not until the worst of the conflagration is over.

Complete Low-Life

And all on account of what? All on account of the ragweed. It is unpalatable: even hungry goats refuse to consume it. It serves no useful purpose. Hated of man and beast, only God smiles on it. In fact he laughs on it, because where it flourishes it really flourishes. It is one of the most successful of living organisms. And nothing is done to encourage it. And yet year after year it returns with all the happy abundance of dandelions and fills the whole earth with its pollens.

I have picked the ragweed as the plant and the middle west as the place, because that is the only combination which produces real masculine bull hay fever. Out in California the allergists claim to cure their cases, but that is an empty triumph, as skilful as killing a beetle with a sledge hammer. They have a little sickly sissy sage.

Marion Delegation Joins In Applause of Willkie Speech

Everybody Impressed by His Frankness and Sincerity, Leaders from Here Report.

Some 200 Republicans from Marion and nearby, who went by special train to Elwood, Ind., Saturday to hear Wendell L. Willkie formally accept their party's presidential nomination, joined with the 350,000 other persons who jammed into the midwest town in praising their candidate's acceptance speech.

They heard and heartily approved their candidate's challenge to President Roosevelt for a series of campaign debates and his promise, if elected, to reverse New Deal foreign and domestic policies. "The dignified and serious manner in which he issued the challenge will not permit a graceful refusal on the part of the President," was the comment of Walter D. Moore, head of the Marion County Willkie-for-President club, who headed arrangements for the special train.

French Crow, chairman of the Marion County Republican Executive committee, said he "had never witnessed a huge crowd, with every person so intensely interested in every word of the speaker." I heard only favorable remarks and every one was impressed by Willkie's sincerity and delivery," he added. Marion Hinklin, former president of the Young Republican Club of Marion county, commented that the word "excellent" summed up Willkie's talk, the presentation and its acceptance by the public."

Occupy Three Coaches

The Marion delegation embarked on an Erie railroad special which left Union depot at 10:15 a. m. Saturday. Also on the train were delegations from Akron, Ashland and Mansfield, while a group of 30 Delaware county residents joined the Marion contingent here. Three coaches were alloted to the local group and the train, completely air-conditioned, was equipped with diner and refreshment cars. The train arrived at 1:25 p. m., Elwood time, the trip returning requiring a little over four hours.

Upon arrival there the delegation marched from the station past the now famous school, where Willkie attended classes, and to Callaway park where the acceptance ceremonies were held. From the moment they reached the park until the train started the return journey at 7 p. m., they scattered through the vast throng to vantage points from which to hear and see the candidate. Some sought shelter from the intense heat, others bided their time taking photographs and some just mingled through the assemblage.

No Formality

The parade, delegates reported, was informal with arriving parties marching from their trains to the park. Some of the units tramped over Elwood streets again and again, and it was not unusual to see marching groups passing each other in opposite direction on the same street. Most of the Marion group were fortunate enough to be on hand for Willkie's arrival. He first appeared, in company with Mrs. Willkie and their son, at the schoolhouse. There he gave an impromptu talk before proceeding to the official platform in the park.

Loudspeakers carried the address to all of the delegates and those who didn't get within close proximity of the speaker had no difficulty hearing his words. Members of one Marion party, who made the trip by automobile, avoided the general bedlam of the crowd. They arrived in Elwood at 7 a. m., watched the hundreds upon hundreds descend on the city and waited for a glimpse of Willkie. As he made his way to the park they left by automobile and heard the talk by radio enroute home.

The pilgrimage was not without its humorous incidents. Some seven members of the Marion party, all of whom had been informed of the train's departure schedule, were not on hand when it left at 7 p. m. Their tickets, however, were honored on a later special returning to Akron and they were able to rejoin the Marion group at Lima. The train arrived in here at 11:45 p. m.

Review of Speech

A synopsis of the Willkie speech, as reported by The Associated Press, follows:

"I should threaten foreign governments," he said, "only when our country was threatened by them and when I was ready to act, and I should consider our diplomacy as part of the people's business concerning which they were entitled to prompt and frank reports to the limit of practicability.

"I promise, by returning to those same American principles that overcame German autocracy before, both in business and in war, to outdistance Hitler in any contest he chooses in 1940 or after.

"And I promise that when we beat him, we shall beat him on our own terms, in our own American way."

Turning to domestic issues, Willkie told his audience:

"I say that we must substitute for the philosophy of distributed scarcity the philosophy of unlimited productivity. I stand for the restoration of full production and reemployment by private enterprise in America."

He then summarized his own views in these words.

"I believe that the forces of free enterprise must be regulated. I am opposed to business monopolies. I believe it collective bargaining, by representatives of labor's own free choice, without any interference and in full protection of those obvious rights.

"I believe in the maintenance of minimum standard for wages and of maximum standards for hours. I believe that such standards should constantly improve. I believe in the federal regulation of interstate utilities, of securities markets, and of banking. I believe in federal pensions, in adequate old age benefits, and in unemployment allowances.

"I believe that the federal government has a responsibility to equalize the lot of the farmer, with that of the manufacturer. If this cannot be done by parity of prices, other means must be found—with the least possible regimentation of the farmer's affairs. I believe in the encouragement of cooperative buying and selling, and in the full extension of rural electrification."

Attitude on Spending

Willkie asserted that while "the new deal stands for doing what has to be done by spending as much money as possible, I propose to do it by spending as little money as possible."

The nominee devoted a large section of his speech to detailed criticism of Roosevelt foreign policy, saying:

"He has dubbed in inflammatory statements and manufactured panics. The President's attacks on foreign powers have been useless and dangerous. He has courted a war for which the country is hopelessly unprepared—and which it emphatically does not want.

"He has secretly meddled in the affairs of Europe, and he has even unscrupulously encouraged other countries to hope for more help than we are able to give."

Contrasting his own views on international relations, Willkie said:

"I promise, by returning to those same American principles that overcame German autocracy once before, both in business and in war, to outdistance Hitler in any contest he chooses in 1940 or after.

"And I promise that when we beat him, we shall beat him on our own terms, in our own American way."

Attacks "Promises"

The Republican nominee declared that the "promises of the present administration cannot lead you to victory against Hitler, or against anyone else."

He proposed that in the next two and a half months, he and Mr. Roosevelt appear together in various parts of the country to debate "the fundamental issues of this campaign."

Willkie listed these issues as problems of domestic economy—agriculture, labor, industry, and finance,—as well as problems of national defense.

"And also I would like to debate," he said, "the question of the assumption by the President, in seeking a third term, of a greater public confidence than was accorded to our presidential giants, Washington, Jefferson, Jackson, Lincoln, Cleveland, Theodore Roosevelt, and Woodrow Wilson."

Coupled with Willkie's criticism of New Deal foreign policies was a denunciation of its domestic program.

"This administration stands for principles exactly opposite to mine," he said. "It does not preach the doctrine of growth. It preaches the doctrine of division.

"We are not asked to make more for ourselves. We are asked to divide among ourselves that which we already have. The new deal doctrine does not seek risk, it seeks safety. Let us call it the 'I pass' doctrine."

Called Destructive Course

He termed the New Deal's viewpoint "exactly the course France followed to her destruction," and added:

"As in France, so here, we have heard talk of class distinctions and of economic groups preying upon other groups. We are told that capital hates labor and labor capital."

But Willkie asserted "there is no hate in my heart," and said he stands "for a new companionship in an industrial society."

Willkie began his address with an appeal for the "preservation of American democracy."

Declaring that "party lines are down," he said:

"Nothing could make that clearer than the nomination by the Republicans of a liberal Democrat, who changed his party affiliations because he found democracy in the Republican party and not in the New Deal party.

Willkie declared that if the British fleet were lost or captured, "the Atlantic might be dominated by Germany, a power hostile to our way of life."

"This would be a calamity for us," he said. "We might be exposed to attack on the Atlantic. "Our defense would be weakened until we could build a navy and air force strong enough to defend both coasts.

"Also our foreign trade would be profoundly affected. We might have to change our methods to some totalitarian form."

Willkie said he would not analyse the conscription legislation now before congress or examine the administration's intentions in that regard, but he asserted that the latter should be closely watched.

"Nevertheless," he said, "in spite of these considerations, I cannot ask the American people to put their faith in me, without recording my conviction that some form of selective service is the only Democratic way in which to secure the trained and competent manpower we need for national defense."

He said that although Americans turn aside from the recurring conflicts in Europe, "we know that we are not isolated from those suffering people."

"No man," he continued, "can guarantee to maintain peace. In the foreign policy of the United States, as in its domestic policy, I would do everything to defend American democracy and I would refrain from doing anything that would injure it.

"We must not permit our emotions—our sympathies or hatreds—to move us from that fixed principle."

The first task of the United States in its international affairs, Willkie asserted, "is to become strong at home. We must regain prosperity, restore the independence of our people, and protect our defensive forces. If that is not done promptly, we are in constant danger. If that is done, no enemy on earth dare attack us. I propose to do it."

5,000 See Columbus Driver Successfully Defend Ohio Motorcycle Crow

Atkinson Repeats As State Titlist Over Course Near Waldo.

More than 5,000 spectators were thrilled yesterday as they witnessed Lew Atkinson successfully defend his expert's crown in Ohio Motorcycle Championship races held near Waldo The curly-haired blond from Ohio's capital city drove his English Ariel in real championship form to finish several hundred feet ahead of his nearest rival, Delbert Blake of Akron

Leads All The Way

Atkinson grabbed the lead at the starter's flag and there he remained for 15 laps when he received the checkered flag informing him that he was again king among Ohio's motorcycle gentry Art Heck of Willard was the champ's nearest challenger until he spilled on the treacherous northwest turn on his first lap He was only a few feet behind Atkinson who by the time he remounted was far out in front Blake took over second place and held it until the end of the race never being any closer than 100 feet to Atkinson who negotiated the half mile curves and hills in the fast time of nine minutes and 13 seconds

Harry Sonny Copeland Marion's only entry who was nosed out in the same event last year by Atkinson was off to a bad start and was never any closer than third place That's where he finished a short distance ahead of Otmer Gindee of Akron Copeland had ill luck all afternoon a fall in the preliminary run robbing him of first place

Mett Shippe of Akron became Ohio's amateur champion as he won this 15-lap event It was the same northwest turn that spelled the waterloo of Ralph Shoppe of Columbus and Len Jordan of Canton who were leading the field for the first few laps until their spills Shippe then took over the lead and finished 100 feet ahead of George Selzer of Troy

Champ Wins Prelim

The 45 expert elimination races were run in two heats of 10 laps each Atkinson won the first in six minutes and 48 seconds He was followed by Art Heck of Willard Al Martin of Kenton nosed out Pete Lesinsky also from that city in the second heat Heck set a blistering pace to win the 80 expert elimination run He was clocked at six minutes and 13 seconds for the ten laps

Ralph Shoppe crossed the finish line first in the 45 amateur elimination event ahead of champion Mett Shippe

A consolation race which was held for amateurs and novices was won by Len Jordan of Canton who drove his English made bike around the track in seven minutes and 7 seconds Art Fgert a flat track star from Westhill New York was second

Trophies Presented

Atkinson received a trophy from the American Motorcycle club and Shippe received one from the Triangle Motorcycle club of Marion sponsor of the races Prizes totaling $300 were split among the first three place winners in each race

Tribe Down East After Rain Saves Sunday Game

Don't Look Now Bob, But You're Being Watched

Neck craning fans peer into the dugout at Chicago to glimpse Bob Feller (left), Iowa-born pitcher and Rollie Hemsley also of the Cleveland Indians

By The Associated Press

BOSTON, Aug 19—The Indians opened the tell-tale tour here today and besides a three and one-half game lead they had Chief Rainmaker in their corner

After a three-game series here the Tribe travels to New York Washington, Philadelphia and Chicago before returning home Sept 2

Last Trip East

If they end the tour in first place they expect to take the pennant easily Except for two three day jaunts to Detroit Cleveland will play at home the rest of the month

The rainmaker lined up with the Indians for a triple favor He washed out the first game of a doubleheader with St Louis in the 10th inning after the Browns had scored four runs and the score reverted to a 2 2 tie he saved Johnny Allen who was scheduled to pitch the nightcap for the opener here and he made it necessary for St Louis and Cleveland to play another twin bill at Cleveland a bill the business office won't regret

The tie game was a pitching duel between Al Smith Cleveland southpaw and Vernon Kennedy with the result widening the Indians margin over Detroit by a half-game as the Tigers dropped a decision to Chicago

Ahead Until Ninth

Smith had a 2 to 1 victory tucked away until the ninth when he walked Harland Clift The Browns third baseman took second on George McQuinn's sacrifice and scored as Johnny Berardino singled

In the first half of the extra inning Don Heffner singled but was out at second on Myril Hoag's attempted sacrifice Rip Radcliff singled then Smith got in trouble by walking Wally Judnich filling the bases A doublet by Clift scored two runs and McQuinn singled to plate the other two At that point the rainmaker stepped in

Cleveland got its runs in the first two innings Ben Chapman walked to lead off in the initial frame took third on Roy Weatherly's double and scored on Beau Bell's grounder

The second came when Roy Mack got his 10th home run at the start of the second

Johnny, of Double No-Hit Fame, Sees Action in Minors

CINCINNATI O — Johnny Vander Meer the no-hit wonder of major league baseball history is happy these hot summer evenings because he's getting plenty of work

The hero of Rhineland when he pitched two consecutive no-hit games in 1938 Vander Meer was the problem child of the Reds in 1939 and 40 before requesting Manager Bill McKechnie to send him down the river to the Indianapolis club in the American association

Vandy pitched good ball in his first three starts for Indianapolis winning all three allowing 28 hits and striking out seven In his last game out he left the range left his side walked nine men in less than two innings and was charged with his first loss although he didn't allow a hit

Johnny wasn't disheartened He merely expected to start the next night Pal Manager Jewel Enos keeps telling Bill John to relax and shoot the works ball will come back and he'll be back in the big show

The young New Jersey portsider is happy about his visit to the minors

I'm getting the work I need and soon he'll be going before I'll be able to shoot the feather in there where the catcher wants it he declares

Reflecting his manager's assertion that the fans idolize him Vandy grins and admits that hundreds of requests for his autograph have been received from youngsters as well as members of the fairer sex

Cincinnati Red officials are watching closely Vander Meer's work in the hope that he'll be back in time for the world series—and they're certain their team will be playing

We didn't send him over there to bring him right back' they state but if he's right we'll have him back with us for the final drive and the series

Reds Getting Worried After Dropping 2 Games to Cards

By SID FEDER
Associated Press Sports Writer

That wasn't an S O S that broke in on your setting up exercises over the radio this morning It was only an emergency call from Deacon Will McKechnie to rush his Cincinnati Reds some bats without holes in 'em

The good deacon realizes it's a case of getting some bats loaded with base hits—or else For the Dodgers of Brooklyn who apparently didn't read the headlines about the Rhinelanders being in with the National league pennant are on the prowl again

The Reds' weak hitting has been the big reason why they've lost 12 of their last 20 games since the end of July And so far this month the Dodgers have shaved Cincinnati's league lead down from 7½ to 4½ games

The 'clutch' hitting was missing again yesterday as the Reds lost both games of a doubleheader to the St Louis Cardinals 3-1 and 5-4 At the same time Leo Durocher took over the Brooklyn shortstop chores and helped his Dodgers chill the warmed up Boston Bees twice, 7-2 and 3-1

Lefty Larry French sang the Pittsburgh Pirates to sleep with a six hitter for a 9 1 Chicago Cub victory which left the Bucs and the Cubs tied for fifth place

The Phillies completed the National league picture by whipping the New York Giants twice 8-3 and 8 6

The New York Yankees blew hot and cold walloping the Athletics 9-1 behind Steve Sundra's six-hit elbowing in the opener then going down 7-3 before Johnny Babich

Earl Johnson the Boston Red Sox's recent importation of pitching hope stopped the Senators with five hits for a 4-2 decision

Trout Savich Are Headliners On Tonight's "Bargain Bill"

Tonight's wrestling match previously was scheduled for the Uncipher avenue outdoor arena but the unseasonably chill weather following closely on the heels of heat broking showers may send to the bouts being staged inside at the Marion Steam Shovel gymnasium

A 'bargain bill' is being featured with the show thrown open to all at general admission prices The reason is the controversial finish of last week's duel between Dick Trout of Los Angeles and Danny Savich from the University of Utah They were rematched for the 90 minute main go after promoters withheld their purses a week ago

Buck Weaver and Tex Riley stick up again each other in the 45-minute semi-final The preliminary starting at 8 30 matches Ned Taylor and Gus Johnson

The Contemplated Visit to Hear Edith's Anticipated Confession Brings Forebodings of Another Tragedy

"HE WAS very matter of fact and decided in his reply," Miss Whitlock told me, slowly, and patently choosing her words with care.

"He said that he was terribly busy, and could not possibly spare the time for an interview."

"Oh!" I exclaimed again. "How blunt—how almost cruel!"

"Suppose we say how like any annoyed man," she smiled, and I put another query.

"Did he make that final?" I asked.

"Not exactly," she replied. "He explained that she was hysterical and temperamental, and that an interview would probably excite her. He asked me to tell her he was too busy to come to see her for a day or two, but would visit her later."

There was a troubled look in her eyes which made me say falteringly:

"Do you think that refusal had anything to do with what you fear about her?"

"I have had to watch her every minute since," she answered simply. "I did not close my eyes last night."

"You'll close them tonight," I said. "I shall watch her myself, and I shall make an opportunity to see her before then, and see if I can fathom her trouble. For the next hour I shall be too busy to help you, but after that I can relieve you."

"That is good of you," she said gratefully.

"Good!" I replied scornfully. "Decent, you mean. I do wish I could send you to sleep right away, but as I said, I can't get away for an hour. Now, how about this plan? You said she was safe under this opiate for an hour. If I promise to waken you in forty-five minutes, can't you sleep that long?"

"Indeed I can, and glad of the chance," she returned, and I started back with her to Edith's door.

"I'll talk with you about this later," I said. "Only, do tell me how you know that she is contemplating suicide. Has she said so?"

"No, indeed," she answered. "But—I spent a year of my nursing in a psychopathic ward. I know most of the symptoms."

"Is there anything more you wish to tell me before you lie down?" I asked.

She did not answer for a long second, then she said carefully: "Only that she appears to have something on her mind which she wishes to reveal—or—confess—" she returned. "That, I believe, is why she wished to see your husband. I wish it were possible—"

Her voice broke off, and I filled in the gap.

"He will see her at the very first opportunity." I said with decision. "I promise you that."

"That may be the one thing needed to turn the scale," she said, and spoke no more until we had reached the door.

"You are sure you will call me within three-quarters of an hour?" she said insistently.

"I promise that faithfully," I reiterated, and turned away, obsessed by the conviction that Edith's only reason for asking to see Dicky was the wish to see his face once more before she should go out into the eternal darkness.

A terrifying thought halted my steps, and spun me around again, facing the closed door of my room in which Edith lay. Suppose her crazed brain prompted her to try to take Dicky with her! Suppose she had some cunningly concealed weapon with which she could strike at him! ?

INDIFFERENCE HIT AT UNION SERVICE HERE

Dr. Bell Criticizes Laziness of Many Today.

"Today there are many whose sleepy indifference is causing them to miss some of the greatest sermons of life," Dr. Harry L. Bell of Central Christian church said in a message on "Sleeping Through the Sermon," delivered Sunday night at the union service at Trinity Baptist church.

"All the sermons of our day are not being delivered in churches," he continued. "Stirring preaching is being done in these times by editors, professors, physicians, lawyers and business men. If Shakespeare could find sermons in the stones of the field, surely we may find them in the life and instituuons of modern society. Yet, among us are those who seem to be totally oblivious to all these sermonic sights and sounds."

Sheer laziness, preoccupation with secondary things of life, and the spell of false reasoning were blamed by Dr. Bell.

"Many men are afflicted with a moral hook-worm," he said. "In business they may be alert, but in morality and religion they seem to think they can be rocked into character in a hammock.

"They are so absorbed with business, pleasure and social engagements that a religious topic acts like an anesthetic.

"Many a fellow dismisses the whole subject of religion with some superficial remark about modern science and psychology. Many Christian mothers who couldn't tell psychology from a sunflower have done more to elevate human society than whole regiments of scientific but godless experts.

CLARK SAYS BULLITT TALK NEAR TREASON

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19—Senator Clark (D-Idaho) told the senate today the that address of Ambassador William C. Bullitt, predicting a German attack on the United States if Great Britain is defeated, was "very very little short of treason."

Bullitt's speech, Clark added, amounted to "an appeal to the American people to go into an unprovoked foreign war now for which he says they are not prepared."

This, he asserted, "comes mighty, mighty close to being false to the republic which put him where he is."

Bullitt, ambassador to France, made the address yesterday in Philadelphia. He urged adoption of conscription and supported aid for the British fleet.

WALLACE RELEASED TO START CAMPAIGN

KNOX'S PAPER JOINS WILLKIE BANDWAGON

Chicago Daily News Says He Should Be Elected.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Aug. 19—Secretary Knox's Chicago Daily News, in an editorial today, stated that it "believes that Wendell Willkie should be chosen as the next president of the United States."

Commending Willkie's position on international policy as outlined in his address last Saturday, when he accepted the Republican presidential nomination, the newspaper said:

"On the basis of this great speech, and always reserving the right to change our mind in the unlikely event that he later wavers or weakens in the vital concerns of foreign policy and national defense, the Daily News believes that Wendell Willkie should be chosen as the next president of the United States."

Knox, publisher of the Daily News and Republican vice presidential candidate in 1936, was appointed secretary of the navy last June 20 by President Roosevelt. The newspaper announced last week that it would be operated by a three man board during Knox's cabinet service.

The News is an independent newspaper. Four years ago it supported the Landon-Knox Republican ticket.

ARREST THREE MORE FOR OVERDUE FINES

One Sent To Jail for Non-Payment of $92.

A series of arrests ordered by Municipal Judge Hazen for nonpayment of fines meted out by the court earlier in the year continued over the week-end as three more Marion men were picked up by police. Four others were arrested Thursday and Friday.

The three arrested over the week-end are Lester Hird, 43, of 307 North Prospect street, Dayle Gatns, 31, of Park boulevard and A. G. Lilley, 72, of North State street.

Mr. Lilley was ordered committed to the county jail for nonpayment of $92 remaining from a fine of $100 and cost in a drunken driving case. Mr. Gatns paid $21.20, the fine and costs in a disorderly conduct case, and was released. Mr. Bird was released to appear in court today.

Court officials reported that warrants also have been issued for the arrest of several other persons who have failed to keep verbal agreements to pay fines in installments.

Commenting on arrest orders, Judge Hazen said that the action is being taken at the suggestion of a state examiner who recently completed an audit of the court's records.

Judge Hazen said that the "installment" plan in operation here for several years is designed as a convenience to defendants unable to pay fines immediately but that if the fines are not paid within a reasonable period of time the system results in a large accumulation of unpaid fines on the court's records.

brought away," the London war office communique said.

British Somaliland's strategic importance lies in its position dominating a section of Britain's water "life-line" to her far east colonies.

The abandoned protectorate is situated near the mouth of the Gulf of Aden in the Indian ocean, which leads into the Red sea and thence through the Suez canal into the Mediterranean. Since the outbreak of the war, British shipping has been routed by other lanes, avoiding the Mediterranean.

The announcement said the withdrawal was decided upon as an alternative to reinforcing the British Garrison there with reserves who would be of greater use in places more important to the prosecution of the war.

Guns Saved

"All guns except two lost in the early stages of the action have been embarked," the announcement said.

"A great part of the material stores has also been evacuated and the remainder destroyed. Our wounded have been safely brought away."

The Italian communique today declared the British were withdrawing to their ships at Berbera, capital and chief port of Britain's Somaliland protectorate, and Italian spokesmen said a "little Dunkerque" was being staged there—like the British retreat from Flanders under a storm of German air attacks.

(Rome sources said the British force in Somaliland was about 7,000, mostly Rhodesians and Indian troops.)
